ANOTHER BLAST AT MINERAL HILL.

Which Uncovers Four Hundred Dollars Ore.

We stated last week that another rich strike had been made at Mineral Hill in the Lolo, but at that time had not ascertained the value of the find. Saturday we paid the mine a visit and made a personal examination of the property to determine the extent and character of the discovery. We found a tunnel thirty feet deep and entering the ledge only a few feet below the surface. In the bottom of the tunnel we found a mass of ore, heavily impregnated with horn silver and chloride of silver all the way across. It was in flakes and cubes and easily distinguishable without the aid of a glass. We selected, as near as possible, an average sample of the vein and brought the rock to Mr. Wm. Jennings, of Florence, who made four assays of it, the highest going $412.80 and the lowest $103.20 in silver, making the average about $253 per ton. There were about two tons of the ore on the dump and we spent an hour or so in breaking the rock. On every piece broken, with a few exceptions, the chloride was plainly visible. At several points, ranging from one to three hundred feet from the tunnel, the ledge had been cut into on the surface and showed the chloride in large or small flakes. On the surface above the tunnel the ledge shows a width of eight feet. At the point penetrated by the tunnel the width was not determined, as the tunnel has only progressed a fraction over three feet beyond the hanging wall. The Lolo ledge is one of the strongest and best defined in the district and crops prominently and continuously through the length of eight claims, commencing with the Black Jack and thence through the Pacific, the Atlantic, the Lolo, the Sunset, the Ida May, the Fannie Maxwell and the Montana, and can be traced some distance beyond these claims, both north and south. It shows good mineral on all of the claims. Frank Maxwell and Will A. Henry, foreman of the Enterprise, are the lucky owners of the Lolo, and will continue work on it till it is well opened.

Mining.

Judge J. D. Walker, who was one of the pioneer prospectors of the Owl Head mining district, is now in Tucson from his celebrated Vekol mine, south of Casa Grande. The Owl Head district is located about thirty-five miles, by road, west of Tucson and is seventeen miles east of Red Rock station, on the Southern Pacific railroad.

The principal mine in that district, so far as has yet been discovered, is the Jesse Benton, which was located in 1879 by Judge Walker and others. At the present time the developments consist of two shafts, each fifty feet deep, one shaft sixty feet deep, and several shafts of lesser depth. There are about fifty tons of ore on the dump that will average 150 ounces to the ton in silver. It is chloride, free-milling ore. The ledge is narrow but rich, and is from six inches to two feet wide, but in all ore, in which no waste occurs. This mine, with several other promising properties is now owned by the Jesse Benton Consolidated Mining Company. They are now working the mine and propose not only to push its development, but to erect a mill.

The Cuiel is also a promising claim in that district. The vein is two feet wide and carries a good percentage of copper, besides silver and gold. This mine is owned by Mr. Merritt.

At the present time Judge Walker is developing the Vekol mine, southwest of Casa Grande. This is a peculiar vein or deposit, and for a width of a hundred feet across the ledge good ore can be found within a few feet of the surface. The ore is shipped to San Francisco in quantities of about ten tons per month, and is sold there at an average price of nearly $200 per ton. This not only develops the mine, but gives a nice little margin of profit to be laid aside.—Citizen.

The Prescott Democrat says: "Mr. Shafer, the copper smelter, who has just arrived in Prescott, informs us that about ten days ago, while traveling from Pinal to Phoenix, he came across three Chinamen, who had evidently met with a violent death. One was hanging to a tree by the roadside, another was lying on the ground, while the third was sitting in a light wagon, from which the horses had been taken, dead as a nail in a door. All three were riddled with bullets. The remains of the Chinaman lying in the road were almost entirely devoured by coyotes, and but little remained, but the bones were picked clean. Mr. Shafer and his companions frightened the beasts away from their horrible feast, but all night long their fearful howling could be heard on account of being driven from their prey. The bodies were found about twenty miles on this side of Window's ranch. The father of one of the murdered men, who came with Mr. Shafer, discovered by the overcast he wore, that the skeleton on the road was his son. It is supposed the men were murdered for their money, of which they were known to have a large sum. No trace of the murderers has yet been found."

MINERAL HILL AGAIN TO THE FRONT.

A Strike of Horn Silver 250 Feet Below the Surface.

Messrs. Fish and McCallan, while prospecting in the drift at the bottom of the Specie Paying shaft the first of the week, struck horn silver in masses. This drift penetrates the ledge 250 feet below the surface croppings, and the horn silver "find" therein demonstrates beyond all question that the rich horn silver found in the croppings is not a surface deposit, but extends down indefinitely with increasing richness as depth is attained. Geologists who have examined the formation at Mineral Hill and studied the character of the veins, are unanimous in the belief that wonderful riches lie deep down on the veins. The recent developments in the Specie Paying sustains them in this opinion. This deep drift, in which the horn silver has been found, starts from the hanging-wall and has been driven to a depth of forty feet directly across the ledge. As it nears the foot-wall the ore grows richer and the chloride comes in. It shows ore all the way from the face to the breast of the drift of high and low grade. On the surface, along the east side of the croppings, the ledge has been stripped for a distance of fifty feet, and cut into at one point to a depth of six feet. There was a heavy coating of lime on the outside and beneath this lay the horn silver, heavily impregnated with chloride. The possibilities are that it extends the entire width of the ledge, as it shows no decrease in the breast of the cut. The ledge is nearly forty feet wide at this point. As soon as Superintendent Brown arrives from the East a large force of men will be put to work on this mine and a deep and thorough exploration of the ledge will be made. We are confident that the work will show the present promise of the mine not to have been delusive.

A Trip to the Vekol and Other Mines.

It is hardly necessary to say that in going to the Vekol you have to pass the railroad at Casa Grande. From there, some twenty and more miles over a level country, and then some ten miles winding through the hills coming out on the west side of the range in which the mine is located. On my arrival at the mine I was most hospitably received by the Walker brothers. Those gentlemen also gave me the privilege of examining their mine. This I did as thoroughly as present developments permitted. There has already been a large amount of work done on the mine, yet so well and fortunately has this work been done that it shows a combined plan for the better development of this grand property. On the mine there are a number of shafts and drifts, in none of which has the ore been taken out in the drifting or sinking. Every place now open on the Vekol mine shows ore in quantity. The dumps are all covered with second-class ore, the first-class having been sorted and shipped, and every shipment has improved in quantity and value. I remained several days at the mine and from day to day watched its progress, and although I do not pretend to be an expert, yet I do pretend to some practical knowledge of mines and mining, and I am safely saying that it takes time to comprehend the magnitude of such a deposit as is being uncovered by these fortunate owners. Yet, at the same time, I would say that in my opinion this mine is yet in its infancy. From the peculiar nature of the formation and general surroundings we may at any moment be called upon to testify to another of Arizona's grand bonanzas.

After fifteen days at the Vekol mine, the property of Messrs. Walker and Brady, I accompanied L. Walker and J. Barnett to the Casa Grande district. There I saw the Orizaba mine which is a good looking prospect. As yet, there is little done on this mine; I was favorably impressed with it. From this mine we went across the valley to the Silver Bell mine. Here there is a forty-foot shaft and drifts from the bottom of it. The pay-streak is small and I had no means of knowing the value of the ore. There is quite a number of sacks of ore on the dump.

The next mine was the Platinaro in this vein. There is no development. The general indications are very good, yet who can tell what to expect twenty feet below the surface.

Next was the Ready Cash. This is a gold prospect. I found some very good gold specimens. This vein is nearly on the level of the desert. Beyond that is the Jack Rabbit, belonging to the same parties, showing more silver than gold. From there we went to the Walkers' mine, Wall Street. This shows a good vein of great power and strength, but will take some time and money to properly develop it. I also saw another vein of Walkers', but forgot its name. It is, as yet, undeveloped. This last finished what I saw in Casa Grande district.

From here we struck out across the country in as straight a direction as possible for Red Rock, where we crossed the railroad and continued in an easterly direction to the Owl Heads. Here we were well received and fed by the boys in charge of the Jesse Benton. This mine is very well developed and it is unnecessary to give it a recommendation, as it has gained its way from the grass-roots down, and can now be seen on the dumps and in sight all through the mine at least five or six hundred tons of ore, that will average $100 per ton. From here we started on the last wet Sunday, and after seven hours traveling we arrived in Florence, Feb. 19th, 1882, after an absence of three weeks. Although I did not find anything for Jennings on the trip, yet I consider the little wet spell, I have been introduced to a country of great promise, the capabilities of which are as yet unknown, and at some future time I expect will bring forth good fruit.

Wm. Jennings.

The Florence Social Club.

Pursuant to adjournment the members of the Florence Social Club met at the court-house, Wednesday evening, to effect a permanent organization. The committee on organization, appointed at the preliminary meeting, submitted the following as their report:

Resolved, That we hereby form an organization to be known as the Florence Social Club. That each original member shall pay a fee of one dollar, and that the following officers be elected to serve for a term of six months from the first day of March next, to-wit: President, vice-president, treasurer and Secretary; also the following committees, to consist of three members each, viz: committee on dancing, and committee on entertainments. And further, that a committee be appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws to more effectually complete the organization.

J. W. DAVIS, President.
F. W. MOSELEY, Vice-President.
W. A. HENRY, Treasurer.
C. G. LEWIS, Secretary.
T. F. WEDDIN, Committee.

The report was received, adopted and the committee discharged.

On motion the club proceeded to the election of officers by acclamation with the following result: President, Thos. F. Weddin; Vice-President, J. W. Davis; Secretary, Hiram Thomas; Treasurer, F. W. Mosley.

On motion Henry Scholman, W. A. Henry and H. J. Whitehead were elected as the committee on dancing, and C. L. Bailey, W. H. Sutherland and C. G. Lewis were elected to serve on the committee on entertainments.

The subject of suitable quarters for the club was called up and Mr. C. G. Lewis kindly tendered the large dining hall of the Lewis house for such purpose, free of charge. On motion his generous offer was accepted and a vote of thanks was tendered him for the same.

On motion the President appointed Jose M. Ochoa, C. G. Lewis and Henry Scholman a special committee to ascertain the amount and probable cost of the furniture that would be required for the use of the club, with instructions to report at the next meeting.

On motion it was decided that the club should give a dance at the court-house hall Friday evening (March 3d), and the committee was instructed to make the necessary arrangements for the same.

On motion the secretary was instructed to collect the initiation fee from the charter members.

The club then adjourned to Monday evening, March 6th, 8 o'clock, p. m.

Business at Butte.

BUTTE CITY, Feb. 25th, 1882.
ED. ENTERPRISE: Yourself constituted correspondent indites his first letter from this infant city with some trepidation, on account of the dearth of news. It is to be hoped, however, the importance of the town in the commercial world, will, at no very remote period, enable us to boast of our own press to thunder forth the grand results so hopefully looked for by the combination of brains, capital, energy and productive mines.

The wagon-road from the Pinal Consolidated mines to Florence, crossing the Gila river at Butte some sixteen miles above Florence, is completed. Nearly seven miles of the road from Butte to the mines was built over an extremely rough country and through a canyon heretofore considered impassable even to a cayote or jack rabbit. It was built entirely at the expense of the Pinal Consolidated Mining Company, under the superintendence of Thos. Cochran, while the county of Pinal and municipality of the citizens of Florence aided in pushing the road to Round Valley.

We have now already built a hotel, a lodging house and the Pinal Consolidated office, built of California redwood and being large, roomy and well ventilated; also the large store of Goldman & Co., and two saloons. Goldman & Co. have in course of erection a large adobe store-house, and other buildings will be constructed as soon as lumber can be procured.

Town-lots have sold rapidly and the population is daily increasing. A great obstruction to our onward progress is the difficulty of obtaining transportation for freight. Teams are very scarce and much in request, as a large amount of freight is now laying a Casa Grande, without which it is almost impossible to proceed.

At the mines the same state of delay is experienced. Only a few men are at work on account of the necessity of lumber with which to timber the mine and construct a tramway. The mines themselves are well opened and show bodies of ore well calculated to astonish bonanza kings and even excite the envy of old miners. This state of delay of course cannot exist a great while, as the talent and energy to overcome such obstacles occur at present. Teams will be procured, freight will be forwarded, and a fifty-ton smelter erected. Then will the hum of productive industry be heard in the land, the sound of hundreds of hammers and the almost continuous roar of the blast resound from hill to hill, and the cheering crack of the buckskin, skillfully handled by the festive nule skinner, urge the mules to powerful exertions, and a stream of bullion be put in motion, making glad the heart of the stockholder and not to be impeded in its progress until by its repeated dividends eclipse the famous bonanzas of California and Nevada.

Arizona in Congress.

Hon. G. H. Oury is showing himself to be an active delegate in congress and he is looking carefully after the interests of the Territory. On the 11th inst., he introduced a bill to provide an appropriation for the improvement of the Colorado river, which was referred to the committee on appropriations.

On the 15th Mr. Oury introduced a bill to provide for the construction of a wagon road across the Mogollon mountains to the Territory of Arizona, which was read a first and second time, referred to the committee on appropriations and ordered to be printed.

minette on appropriations and ordered to be printed.

Also, on the same day, a bill making an appropriation for the completion of the Territorial prison at Yuma, in the Territory of Arizona, which was read a first and second time, referred to the committee on appropriations and ordered to be printed.

Also a bill making an appropriation for the erection of a building in the city of Tucson, Territory of Arizona, for custom house, postoffice and other purposes, which was read a first and second time, referred to the committee on public buildings and grounds and ordered to be printed.

Also, a bill to provide for the boring of artesian wells in the Territory of Arizona, which was read a first and second time, referred to the committee on appropriations and ordered to be printed.

On the 15th inst., the speaker laid before the house letters from the secretary of the interior, transmitting a plat of the preliminary surveys of the Arizona private land claim, Arizaba, and additional papers in the Arizona private land claim of San Raphael de la Zanja, which were referred to the committee on private land claims.—Citizen.

TIN.

A Ledge of this Mineral Reported Struck in Arizona.

A communication in the Albuquerque Journal of recent date reports a strike of a ledge of tin ore near Grana Station on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad. The geologist of the company has visited the lead and touched for the find. This discovery, if it turns out to be what is claimed for it, that it is a veritable ledge of tin ore, will entitle the discoverer to a premium from the United States government of $20,000 immediately. But tin is a very valuable metal, and no miner on the Pacific Coast (where gold, silver and copper abound) should turn up his nose at a tin mine. To aid those who may search for tin in this Territory the following information may be of service, it being known, however, beforehand, that nothing more than a mere trace of tin has ever been found in this Territory. The only ore that is wrought to obtain tin is the oxyd (stannite). It occurs most commonly in primary rocks, where it is found traversing granite, gneiss, mica slate, clay slate, phyllorhy, and is usually associated with chlorides, iron pyrites, topaz, quartz, fluor, etc. The metal extracted from the ore taken from the situation is called block tin. It is also found in alluvium and drift, and the ore is called stream tin, from which the metal being extracted, becomes the grain tin of commerce. Its colors are brown, black, green, white, red and yellow. It occurs in crystals and in masses from the size of grains to that of the fist. In color it is resinous or adamantine. Streak, grayish-white. Structure, lamellar. Gives sparks with steel. Brittle. Specific gravity from 6.7 to 7.—Exchange.

District Court.

In the District Court of the First Judicial District of the Territory of Arizona, in and for the county of Pinal.

Jessie Moore & Co., Plaintiffs, vs.

The Pinal Copper Co., Defendants.

Action brought in the District Court of the First Judicial District of the county of Pinal, in and for the said county of Pinal, and the complaint filed in said court on the 24th day of January, 1882, in said case, is as follows:

The Territory of Arizona, sends greeting to the Pinal Copper Company, a corporation, defendants.

You are hereby notified to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the District Court of the First Judicial District of the Territory of Arizona, in and for the county of Pinal, and to answer the complaint filed herein within twenty days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons, if served within this county, or if served out of this county, but in this district, within thirty days; otherwise within forty days, or judgment by default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

This action is brought to recover a judgment for the foreclosure of a mechanic's lien of the sum of eight hundred and eighty dollars and fifty cents ($880.50) and for the further sum of one hundred and fifty dollars ($150) attorney's fees for prosecuting this suit in the District Court and for such other and further orders and relief as will more fully appear from the complaint on file herein, and for costs and expenses herein lost out and expended, and you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will take default against you and apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.
